Have a look out for Miss Irving's surprise books!

What will you pick up? Will it be an exciting adventure story, or a fascinating fairy tale?

Why don't you review your book for the MPJ Newsletter?

FLOODED VILLAGE SEEN FOR THE FIRST TIME IN OVER 70 YEARS

Unbelievably, a lost village has emerged at Lake Resia in the North of Italy!

A village, once home to hundreds of people, was intentionally flooded in order to make a solar energy plant in 1950. But now, due to repairs, the lake is being temporarily drained. As it is being drained, people who live close by have been able to see traces of Curon (the name of the original village).

More than 160 homes were flooded, but the top of the church could still be seen above the water (see image at the top of the page). However, you can now see old walls, steps, cellars and even the shape of buildings!

A woman, who is from the region, tweeted that it was a "strange feeling" to be amid the rubble of a former village.

It is crazy how these sort of things are hidden! What would you love to find?

Ask Andy the Alligator...

Dear Andy,

I am a little scared to go into my new class next year. I like my teachers, and I don't know the new ones at all!

Soon we will be doing transition. This means that you will be able to speak to your new teacher. All our teachers are great, so I'm sure you'll enjoy your new class!

AUTISM AWARENESS

Hello, I am Imogen and I am going to tell you all about autism. Autism is something that affects the brain. It can sometimes cause you to be non-verbal. This means that they might not speak at all, or if they do it might not be as clear or fluent as you would expect. People with autism can also have something called a sensory overload. This means that all your senses (smell, taste, sight, touch and hearing) all compete to get your brain's attention. So, you could see a bit of fluff on the floor, but also focus on the tapping of a pencil... then jump to an image on the wall. It can feel very fast and overwhelming. Sometimes, people with autism need a break! Some people live with autism every day, including people in this school. So please be aware!

REVIEWS

High School Musical (Films) ★★★★★

High School Musical is a really good film with a lot of catchy songs and dances. There are three films altogether, and a TV show.

The Witches (Film) ★★★★★

The Witches is a good film about witches that hate little children. I recommend this film, and it's definitely a 5 star film!
